

City of Stillwater Historic Preservation Program

Stillwater, Minnesota

In the summer of 2007, Stillwater initiated the first phase of the Heirloom Home and Landmark Sites Program aimed at educating and engaging the residents of Stillwater in preservation and enabling visitors to learn more about the city's heritage. The 106 Group assisted the Stillwater Historic Preservation Commission with the development of a database and data collection points, designed a new website linked to the information in the database, and developed marketing materials to inform the residents of Stillwater about the program and how to properly maintain historic houses. Architectural historians from the 106 Group also conducted a survey of 69 properties and wrote and entered descriptions of the homes into the city's database that now appear on the program's website.
